San Antonio International Airport on Pace to Set Another Passenger Record in 2006

Mid-year count has airport on pace to top 8 million mark for first time

The total number of passengers at San Antonio International Airport continues to climb toward uncharted territory with a mid-year total of 3,985,043. That number represents a year-to-date total through the month of June. In 2005 a new all-time record was set in regards to the total number of passengers with the final number landing at 7,425,983. Now in 2006, it looks as though the record high is going to be shattered yet again. Through the month of June, passenger levels are running about 10% higher than the record-setting pace set last year. If that trend continues, then San Antonio International Airport could very well hit the 8 million mark for the first time in its history.
